NEWS ON TRUST RESEARCH

from the First International Network on Trust

In this issue we have some great opportunities, information on forthcoming events, and updates to share. Since our last newsletter, we've been busy finding a new Communications Officer and are pleased to announce that Stacey Conchie has joined the board and will be responsible for FINT communications. Stacey examines trust in high-risk contexts, from industry to security, and employs a mixture of methods in her research. She's particularly interested in behavioural markers of trust and runs a number of projects on this topic at Lancaster University, UK.

We continue to make preparations for the next Trust Conference, which is planned for March 2021. It will take place in Charlotte, North Carolina and promises to be a good one! Venue and dates will be confirmed in our next newsletter.

Forthcoming event: HICSS-53 Conference (7-10 January 2020)

The Hawaii International Conference on System Sciences is one of the longest standing scientific communities in the information system and technology fields, attracting both scholars and practitioners. At the 53rd conference, they will host a mini track session on:

Advances in Research on Trust, Trusted Systems & Digital Technologies
(10 January, 14:00-17:30).

Chaired by Sirikka Jarvenpaa, Mareike Möhlmann, & Kirsimarja Blomqvist, the session will advance our understanding of different forms of trust in technology-mediated environments (societal, organizational, inter-organizational, network, platform, collective, and interpersonal contexts).

A highly recommended track if you're attending HICSS in January!

SPRITE+: Call for Members

The Security, Privacy, Identity, and Trust Engagement NetworkPlus launched in September and brings together people involved in research, practice, and policy with a focus on digital contexts. The network is currently inviting those with related interests (academic, business or other) to become a member.

It costs nothing to join. You simply need to register at this link.

Members receive newsletters, can join the discussion list, have access to online resources and opportunities to attend events and may bid for funds. Members' online profiles offer opportunities to contact each other for networking and building collaborative relationships.

Talks

Prof. Antoinette Weibel gave an excellent interview on CNN about trust as key to workplace success. A 'must' listen:

Dr Lisa van der Werff gave a public keynote at the annual Late Autumn School in Münster, Germany. She expanded the audiences' understanding of trust antecedents to consider factors that go beyond trustworthiness qualities. Lisa's talk was accompanied by two others given by Prof. Dr. Martin Bauer (on trust attitudes towards science) and Prof. Dr. Mike Schafer (on the changing media ecology of science communication).

Journal of Trust Research

The latest issue is packed with interesting and thought provoking papers. From a qualitative study examining propensity to trust through a study focusing on the Arctic sea to one about 'jumper' managers!

Who needs a better reason to grab a hot brew and sit in their comfy chair?!

Calling all news!

We want to hear about your news. If you've had a trust-related paper published, a trust PhD student graduate, or have been involved in an exciting trust project (although aren't all trust projects exciting?!) - let us know and we'll feature it in the next newsletter (email: s.conchie@lancaster.ac.uk).

Best wishes from the FINT Board:
